

OUR MISSION

The Open the Doors project has been created to demonstrate that NEET youth are able to learn, to engage and even to immerse in learning - given them the right conditions. The right conditions simply means: proper, motivating and exciting activities that can be created in any learning environment.

The most important thing in the kind of mission that we work with is to create capacity.

Our missions are social missions, linked to real-life engagement and real-life change. The young people need to build capacity to accomplish such social change missions. The missions must help the young people build capacity to better manage their dead-end situations, and to create something useful for themselves.

WORKING WITH YOU

The Open the Doors project would like to share experience with similar initiatives from across Europe.

We aim to create a strong European network along the project (2015-17) with the perspective to take further initiatives at European level, including through European and private funding.

If you are working in similar directions, we invite you to work and share with us, and to join our European network initiative. The final output of the project will be the "Guidelines for 21st century NEET prevention facilities and staff" where we will share the lessons learned during those two years.

WHY DO THE YOUNG NEETs NEED THIS

Because for most young NEETs there are no other ways out than the ones they create themselves; for most of them education and good jobs are not realistic options... They need to be able to change the situation themselves. Society will not do it for them...

The mission of the mission(s) is to create a feeling based on real experience and to do something for yourself and bring about change.

The missions are the tools with which we seek to build capacities, since such capacity cannot be built in the classroom or through traditional empowerment approaches.

WHAT WILL WE CREATE - AND SHARE WITH YOU?

In the next Opening' News we will introduce you to the projects meetings and web resources, offering various inspirational materials from the project as well as important European papers.

If you wish to make sure that you receive our Opening' News, you can contact the coordinator and join the Opening' News mail list.
